Why Are Dogs Called 'Man's Best Friend'?

FOR DOG LOVERS | By Kristina Kledzik

Through the ages, man has called dog one of his closest companions. He has also called him protector, helper, lifesaver, and provider. Dogs are an incredible friend to man because they have been there through the years, through any task and any challenge, but the relationship between dog and man goes a bit deeper (and older).

The friendship between dog and man dates back to 15,000 years when dogs, who originated from a common ancestor, followed man throughout his migrations in East Asia. Psychologically, this connection makes sense because both man and dog are social beings. Neither can thrive when alone, and both benefit mentally (and often physically) from such a strong bond. Having a dog at home gives us a listening ear, a warm paw to hold, and even strong legs to run beside.

It's a symbiotic relationship, since dogs have been domesticated to a point where they need us to survive, and we tend to find that we need them almost as much.

The dog-wolf similarity is significant to the meaning behind the phrase "dogs are a man's best friend." Dogs share 99% of their DNA with wolves. However, unlike wolves, dogs exude a sense of warmth to other dogs and humans that differs greatly from a wolf's reaction to others. Dogs are, indeed, social pack animals who require attention, affection, and everything in between, making them a prime candidate for a man's best friend.

Dogs have proven themselves time and again to be loyal, kind, understanding, and have an indomitable spirit. They are able to greet us happily after what may have been the worst day of our lives, and make us feel better with a wag of the tail and a playful grin. They are at our sides when we are sick, sad, and lonely. They love us even when we are grumpy, rude, or downright mean. Dogs are the ones who seem to understand us on a level even we cannot fathom.

Whether as an assistant to a shepherd, a strong nose and swift feet for a hunter, eyes and ears for the blind and deaf, or simply a companion unlike any other, dogs help humans with day-to-day tasks, many of which may not be possible without them. Dating back to the 16th century, dogs have served as service helpers for the blind, and by the 1970's, the trend of training dogs for people with disabilities flourished.

As if that isn't an all-encompassing task in itself, dogs also help prevent possible crimes and save lives, as in the cases of drug-sniffing canines. German shepherds, a 200-year-old breed, are most commonly seen as working dogs who serve as canine police all around the world.

Plain and simple: we call dogs our best friends because we love them. We take pride in our dogs, and sometimes show them off to others as we would our children. We play with them, hold them close, and rely on them for any number of reasons. The reason that we call dogs "man's best friend" is a simple one. It is because dogs allow us to be their best friends.

Our PetZone Products

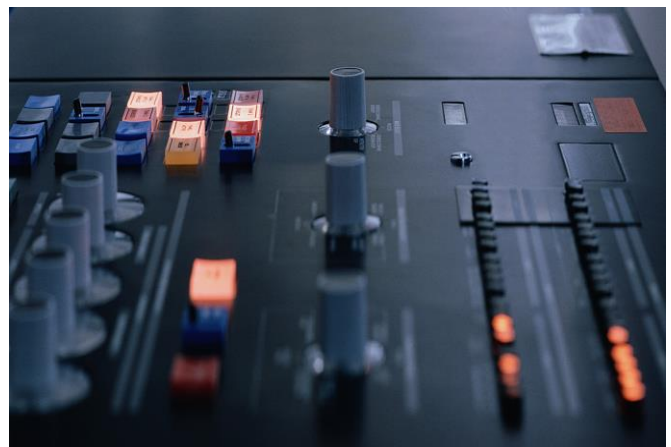

Calm is specifically made to combat feelings of depression by balancing the dog's behavior, and helps work to beat back a wide variety of secondary symptoms that are related to stress and anxiety. This product is safe for all animals.

Parasite and other kinds of worms can invade your pet's intestinal tract and can cause diarrhea, vomiting or weight loss, but they can also be present in your pet's body without any symptoms. Parasite enhances the animal's immune system to stop infections.

PetZone understands the benefits of healthy functioning frequencies that emit from our bodies, and we study their energetics so we can duplicate them onto an advanced metalized material that is used in all the products we manufacture at our facility.

The PetZone products are constructed with quality and durability in mind for the environment of the animal. Our team of engineers made these products to last for the period of their service. The special plastic dome on top of each product is made to protect the carbon/crystalline (RF) material that harnesses the energy frequency for each product. We also supply a dog tag made from aluminum that holds the product to your dog's collar.

Through our patented AFG Synthesis process, these strings of frequencies are programmed into a small disk that is attached to your dog's tags to protect them from the harmful effects of infections from pathogens.

PetZone Product Packages

Okay, so our PetZone Product Packages have all dogs on them. I have no idea how that happened, but it did. I think that most of our "human" clients have dogs, so it was inevitable to have the dogs on the products. If you notice on our last page, there is a plethora of different animals.

Regardless of your precious pet, we have a patch for what ails them, such as Flea & Tick, Calm, Parasites, Pain & Joint, Allergy Relief and Rejuvenator. We even have a patch for Horses, but that's a different story.

PetZone understands the benefits of a healthy functioning pet. There is nothing worse than a pet who is not feeling well. So, we decided to create patches for our furry friends

The concept is not surprising, based on our "Human" patches; we created a series of healthy frequencies that are emitted from the animal body and duplicate them onto an advanced metalized material that is used in all the products we manufacture at our facility. The PetZone products are constructed with quality and durability in mind for the environment of the animal. Our team of engineers made these products to last for the period of their service. The special plastic dome on top of each product is made to protect the carbon/crystalline (RF) material that harness the energy frequency for each product.

We also supply a dog tag made from aluminum that holds the product to your dog's collar. The best part of all this is that it's DRUG FREE, yes that's right, Drug Free! You don't have to poison your pets with harmful chemicals any longer!

Surprising Ways that Dogs Show Affection

Nosing

Does your dog ever come up and nudge you with their nose? This can be a sign of affection, a way for your dog to say "Hey, I like you!" Of course, nose-nudging is also a way for dogs to seek attention, or to let you know you're in their way. You'll know your dog is expressing affection if the nose-nudge is accompanied by a soulful stare, or leads to more full-body contact.

Eye Contact

Eye contact is an intimate act. For many dogs, it's a display of trust and affection. If your dog maintains eye contact with you on the reg, they're showing a high degree of attachment. When your dog looks at you, their brain releases oxytocin, which is the same hormone that helps new mothers' bond with their babies. Your brain does the same thing.

Note: affectionate eye contact is different from threatening eye contact. We don't recommend having a stare-down with an unknown or nervous dog. Instead, look for opportunities to make and hold eye contact with your dog throughout the day. Think of it as building trust over time.
